510-2031 Cleo Armless Accent Chair, 26 x 30 3/4 x 33 1/4

Her namesake may be a seductress for the ages, but our Cleo's appeal is unassuming and all modern. A tall back descends easily to a tailored tight seat. A welt traces the trajectory, and her stance is regal: Cleo holds court on tall tapered legs.

445-2031 Dakota Armless Accent Chair, 26 1/4 x 31 1/4 x 34 1/2

Hyperbole is not in Dakota's vocabulary, but meaningful detail is. This armless chair is set on a simple wood-trim base. Back and seat cushions are lightly channeled and button tufted. A straight welt outlines every inch of Dakota's silhouette, so every design detail may be quietly appreciated.

Zander bridges tradition and modernity with high shelter arms and perfectly fitted double cushion styling. The sectional's smooth horizontal lines are accentuated with a row of button tufts. Quintessentially today.

Quinton's resume is pages long: sofa, chair, mix-and-match sectional pieces, and even a lowly ottoman. He's everywhere because great design is versatile – and comfortable. Quinton cushioning is plump and boldly scaled, a lovely point of contrast to narrow track arms and a tightly banded base, a signature of modern design. Quinton ticks all the boxes.

Walsh channels the iconic conversation pit, circa 1960. Here's how it works (beautifully) today. A pair of opposing tight-seat and back chaises flank an armless sofa. Each piece is set on a wood-trim plinth base that seems to float the whole affair. The result is a delightfully sprawling seating solution. Perfect for spaces not horizontally challenged.

Willow is a wily chameleon. This round ottoman is willing to accept her traditional calling: footstool. But Willow has greater aspirations, easily slipping into the role of coffee table. Available in two sizes for even greater versatility.

Essex zigs and zags, outfitted here in a tone-on-tone chevron pattern suggestive of delta brain waves during REM sleep. But let's not overthink it. Low to the ground and pared back, Essex is the essential platform bed. It's also dressed for rest.

Modern design loves unusual shapes and geometries. As a result, Marq has taken the trapezoid into the bedroom.

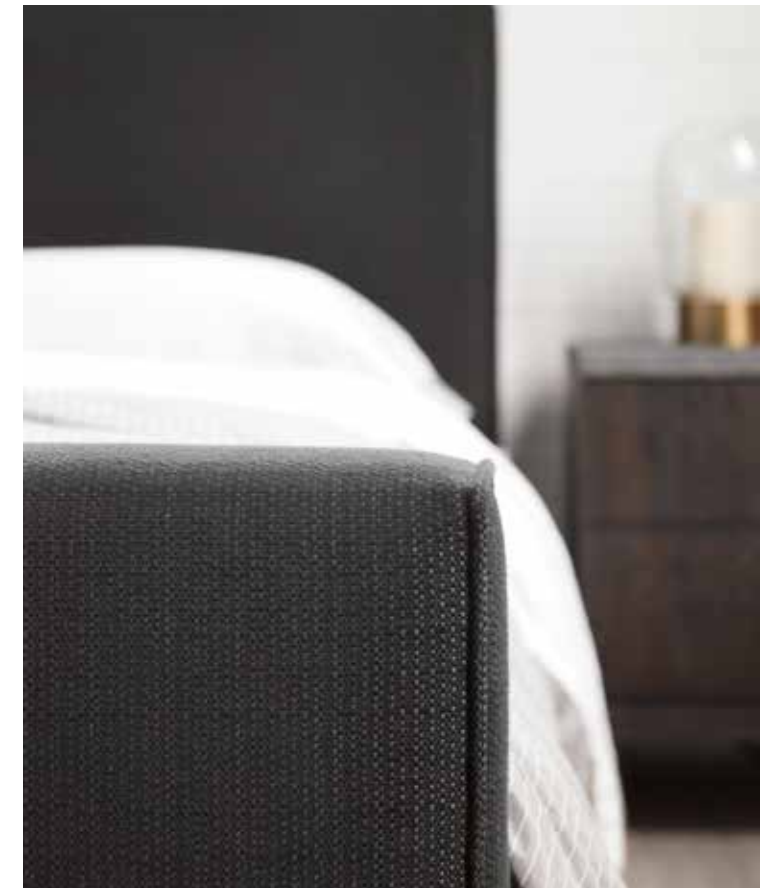

Understated and elegant, the Del Ray platform bed sits low to the ground on tapered legs, focusing all attention on the unusual trapezoidal headboard. The button tufts are like an ellipsis...

Ask any fashion designer: the right shoes can make the outfit. Or bed. Marq designers elevate the look of a modern platform bed – high headboard, low footboard – with thin stiletto-heel inspired gunmetal gray legs. Details to appreciate sleeping and waking.

Boxy is beautiful. Sebastian is all at once compact and spacious with wide tuxedo-style track arms that travel the periphery of the frame. Finished with a bench cushion – boxy, of course – and precisely fitted rectangular bolsters at each arm. Sebastian seems to say succumb, sit and stay.

Who defines what it means to be modern? We all do, but so often a sofa can say it all. Zander bridges tradition and modernity with high shelter arms and perfectly fitted double cushion styling. The sofa's smooth horizontal lines are accentuated with a row of eight button tufts. Quintessentially today.

Not everyone can wear stripes. They reveal every flaw, or in the case of Kai, every asset. Our workroom knows tailoring is key: Kai's olive pencil stripe fabric is beautifully regimented and matched on all five sides with modern flat seams. Life can get messy. Kai? Never.

Poppin opts in with a modern monochromatic look. Dressed in grey flannel and set on grey tapered legs, the Poppin arm and side chairs are elegantly designed and beautifully made.

Skeptics will say a dining chair can't save the world. We beg to differ. Maybe giving everyone a seat at the table is part of the fix. The right chair matters. Enter Evan. Specify with arms (or not) in ivory with tapered ebony legs. A simple design for better living.
